Bradfield Post Office

The decision for Matthew and Paula Fretwell to embark on a complete change of lifestyle and purchase a village Post Office has been somewhat of a life saver. The couple, who had been living and working in Manchester for nine years, made the drastic move when their now two year old daughter, Eleanor, became seriously ill and in need of a better quality of life and time with her parents.

They set about finding a more rural environment for Eleanor to grow up in, and a new career and lifestyle that would allow the whole family to spend more time together, and, through specialist business broker Redwoods Dowling Kerr, hit upon Bradfield Post Office in the heart of the Essex countryside. Bradfield Post Office was the first property they saw; located on the edge of a pretty North Essex village, it provided the perfect location, along with a substantial detached property and an extensive garden.

Matthew comments, "The pros by far out way the cons; there will be much less stress than in our previous jobs, and no commute! The quality time we can now spend together as a family is priceless, and the benefits to Eleanor can already be seen." As far as the couple are concerned there are no regrets and things could not have worked out any better for them.
